Eugene, Or., Aug. 7.—Martin Clark, charged with the murder of Charles L. Taylor, McKenna Bridge road, supervisor whose dead body was found in the mountains last Saturday, was today bound over to the grand jury at a preliminary hearing held here this morning before Judge J. G. Wells of the justice court.

Testimony as to the circumstances surrounding the finding of the body and the condition of the corpse was heard. Sheriff Siskel introduced testimony to show that the shells fired from Clark's gun as test shells bore the identical markings found on the shell picked up at the scene of the crime. Attorney Brownell's appeal for release of the prisoner on bail was refused by the court.

Two Plans For Solution Of Economic Problems Offered

Washington, Aug. 7.—Two plans were proposed in the senate today for solving industrial and economic problems.

One is the reduction of government expenses a billion dollars by 1921 along lines to be worked out by President Wilson as a means of reducing taxes. The other is a total or partial ban on exports of food, clothing and "other necessities of life."

Seattle Streetcar Men Ask Seniority Rule; May Strike

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 7.—Unless Thomas F. Murphy, superintendent of public utilities, grants the demands of the street car men's union that seniority be based on time of service, a strike vote will be taken within 48 hours.

This was decided by the car men last night, and a resolution was adopted condemning Superintendent Murphy's ruling, which places the sixty employees of division A, of the old municipal line, above the seniority rank of the 1870 trainmen working on the cars when the city took the lines over from the Puget Sound Traction, Light and Power company.

J. A. Stevenson, business agent for the street car men's union, announced today he will place the decision of the union before Superintendent Murphy at once.

Give Voluntary Mediation A Fair Trial

Editorial:

A committee of employers is making a personal canvass this week of all principal industries in the Salem district in the interest of voluntary mediation.

Central Labor Council of this city has offered to co-operate in giving the new system of dealing with differences between employers and employees a fair and thorough trial.

Acting upon this liberal proposition several meetings of heads of industries have been held and employers generally have been found willing to meet organized labor half way.

Both sides realize the necessity of building up a sentiment at Salem favorable to sound industrial conditions and to protect the community against invasion of agitators.

Those who have studied the workings of voluntary mediation in Great Britain in Colorado under the Rockefeller plan and elsewhere in the United States and Canada where it has been fairly applied, are enthusiastic for the system.

That it does lead to settlements without losses financially and without invading any fundamental principle of organized labor, must be admitted, and is admitted by conservative labor leaders.

Under this system there will be created a council of mediation composed of three fair-minded representatives of the Central Labor Council and three fair-minded employers to whom all differences growing out of labor problems can be referred.

Such a body will meet and consider both sides fully and strive to reach an agreement as to what is right in matters of wages, hours working conditions, housing and sanitation.

It is objected that under voluntary mediation there exists no power to compel obedience to findings. There is a state conciliation board and state and federal wage commissions, and they also have no compulsory power.

It seems we have reached a place in industrial evolution where the application of force, compulsion, dictation, or even arbitrary action are out of place. General strikes have all failed. A local strike fails if public sentiment does not support it. Only a full and complete knowledge of facts will avail.

This community should welcome and support a local council fairly constituted as a progressive step in the interest of a greater industrial development. Organized labor deserves great credit for taking a progressive step and standing for the principle of voluntary mediation.

March Says Country Needs Revised Military Policy

Washington, Aug. 7.—The war department believes a new military policy should be adopted which "will not find the country again in the state of unpreparedness we had at the outbreak of the war," Chief of Staff March told the senate military affairs committee today.

Military officials are divided between compulsory and universal training, March said.

Secretary Baker now favors universal training. Senator New, Indiana, said, while General March was testifying.

General Pershing, General Leonard Wood and other advocates of universal training will eventually be called before the committee.

Universal training, March said, would cost $94,000,000, while the standing army on the basis of present pay would cost $795,000,000 a year. Senator Johnson, California, expects to lead the opposition to the bill in committee.

Chicago Tribune Attorney Scores Policies Of Ford

Mount Clemens, Mich., Aug. 7.—"A man who interferes with the efforts of the government to crush anarchy is an anarchist," Weymouth Kirkland, for the Chicago Tribune, told the jury in the Henry Ford Chicago Tribune million dollar libel suit here today.

"They say Ford did much for the war equipment of the country, but except for the loyalty of the men he called murderers he would not have been able to do this," Kirkland said. "Ford does not believe in history perhaps that is why he does not believe in preparedness," the attorney continued.

Elsie Ferguson, beautiful, talented and winsome, appears at the Oregon theater Friday and Saturday in her latest screen picture—"His Parisian Wife"—which is said to equal either "Heart of the Woods" or "Under the Greenwood Tree" in its intense interest and dramatic force. In this play she is in the role of a lady reporter on a Paris newspaper, who attracts the attention of a young American lawyer and is transplanted as his wife to the Puritan atmosphere of New England, where she finds a frigid welcome on the part of her husband's family. Out of this grows a series of situations that give opportunity for the full display of Miss Ferguson's genius. She is well supported in the play by a cast of popular stars, headed by David Powell.

H. W. Congdon of Brainerd, Minn., wants to locate in some place out west and has written her asking what the country is like and what farms are worth and what business opportunities the city offers.

Gerald Volk, editor from the fifth floor, went to Portland this evening to attend the sessions of the state convention of editors and later, the meeting of the National Editorial association. For 20 years while living in Wichita, Kans., Mr. Volk was in the newspaper work, and for a few years, was owner of the Dallas Observer.

There is one fruit grower living about six miles south of Salem who feels pretty well pleased with this part of Oregon. His name is Benedict. Coming from Nebraska not so long ago, he bought a ten acre tract on which there was 14 acres of loganberries. This season from this 14 acres, he sold $908 worth of logan. He is writing the wonderful news to a number of his Nebraska friends.

Within the past three days, five families from the central states have come to Salem and are here looking for good buys in real estate and farming lands. At present houses are pretty scarce in Salem. With the third year of failure for Montana crops and most excessively hot weather in the central states there is a feeling among real estate men that something is about to happen to this part of the valley.

Beware of the counterfeit dollars like one discovered today in Salem. It is quite a respectable looking dollar, showing more than average workmanship and would be taken by almost any one not informed that a real counterfeit is now in circulation. It is of a silver darker color than the regulation silver dollar, and although properly milled the edges are a little wider than real dollars. It is a trifling light in weight and lacks the real ring of silver when tested. It is dated 1902 and thought to have been made in Portland as a counterfeit was recently arrested there.

Harry J. Wendorfer, former exalted ruler of the Salem lodge of Elks and delegate to the national convention at Atlantic City is home. He arrived in New York city July 4 when the meteor was climbing over the 100 mark and experienced real eastern hot weather several days. Then when visiting in San Antonio, Texas, on his way home, he landed into some real gulf of Mexico weather, besides a few thousand bugs and beetles and scorpions and such as are generally found in that part of Texas. "It's Oregon for me," observed Mr. Wendorfer.

Francis Tobst-Dreyer, the 14 year old violinist who made such an enviable record in Seattle and the north west in Red Cross and other patriotic work, will be heard Sunday and Monday at the Oregon theater. She has the distinction of being one of the youngest persons in the country to receive an award from the government for her faithful services in Seattle and at Camp Lewis and Bremerton. Through her appearances as violinist, she earned $4000 which was given to Red Cross work and to Belgium relief as well as other patriotic work. The young lady was most favorably received and her playing as a high class artist winning for her most complimentary press reports.

Army discharges were filed with the county recorder's office yesterday by F. Schaffer, D. D. Reeves and V. M. Moffitt.
