isolation without a mandate from the people. The railroad organizations have raised a very large question, one which should not be passed on by congress without becoming the issue in a general election. I am opposed to the bill."

Plumb told the house committee that his plan would allow roads to be remunerated for improvements and extensions they have made out of surplus earnings, should they be taken over.

"You would not allowed the railroad owners any return for a double track they have built out of earnings due to careful management and efficient service?" Representative Montague, Virginia, asked.

"All of the money put back into the property from the earnings belong to the public and should not be included," Plumb answered.

At the invitation of Plumb, a conference of prominent men from all parts of the country was held to discuss the railroad question.

Details of the Plumb plan were explained. A national committee probably will be formed as a result of the conference, it was stated. Among those who attended were Frank P. Walsh, former Governor of New York, Illinois; Frederick C. Howe, New York; Basil Manly, war labor board, and Governor Allen, Kansas.

This is the conference Plumb announced in his testimony before the house committee recently.

SMOKE BARRAGE PLANNED TO SAVE BRAZIL'S COFFEE

By Lawrence S. Ham (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rio de Janeiro — (By mail)—The "alerte" and "all clear" system of warning of air raids, which was used in Paris during the war, has been adapted by the coffee planters of southern Brazil in unique measures which have been ordered to combat frost. A smoke barrage is to be adopted instead of the siren which was so effectively used to "get" enemy raiders, and the agricultural officials of this country believe that compliance with the new regulations will provide against a repetition of the damage of last year's frost, which cost so many millions of dollars to planters and also to consumers.

During the winter of 1918 an extraordinary cold wave, beyond the memory of the "oldest inhabitants," swept over southern Brazil, and it was during this spell that the first snow in more than eighty years fell in Buenos Aires. The frost found the planters absolutely defenceless and when normal weather returned, it was found that millions of coffee trees were killed and a large percentage of the others injured so badly that the crops for the next three years will be cut down by about one half. Instead of a production of 15,000,000 bags a year, seven or eight millions at all that can be hoped for annually until 1921.

This frost had the effect of about tripling the local price of coffee.

The new plan which has been evolved for getting the best of "Jack Frost" is being put into effect by the municipality of Itajaly, a city in the state of Santa Catharina, in the heart of the southern Brazil coffee country. Planters in other localities will watch the effect of this campaign with the greatest interest and many are considering its adoption. Its success will probably mean the enforcement of such a regulation in other districts where coffee crops would be subject to frost.

The regulations are compulsory, being issued by the agricultural authorities. Violation by planters under the jurisdiction of the district is then subject to heavy fines.

The project calls for the preparation of fuel for bonfires north, east and west of the coffee groves at distances of thirty to forty metres apart. This preparation must be made early in the cool season and continued for several months. Each planter must collect sufficient wood and brush to keep fires three nights in succession, and in case the fuel reserve becomes in any way depleted must maintain the adequate supply. When the forecasters see a frost, a signal to the planters to light their fires immediately will be given by means of the firing of bonfires.

The idea is to create as much smoke as possible and hay and green leaves are to be thrown on the fires. When the danger of frost is passed the planters will again be notified by bombs to extinguish their fires.
