Governor Oleott has recently received a communication from Attorney John D. Goss, of Marshfield, urging that the act of the last legislature creating the port of Port Orford be annulled through quo warranto proceedings, on the ground that the creation of the port would place a heavy burden of taxation upon the farmers of that section. Countervailing this, A. H. Powers, one of the big lumbermen of the Coos Bay district, writes stating that while the port will make but a slight increase in the tax levy it would result in encouraging an immense tonnage of dairy, farm and lumber products. He also points that there is from 25 to 30 feet of water in the harbor close to shore, and that a proper wharf could be constructed for a maximum of $20,000. It is understood that the governor will not institute proceedings for annulment.

Acting under an amendment to the workmen's compensation act, the industrial accident commission will hereafter adopt the policy of placing cases which has been thrown into the "total disability" class in the hands of expert surgeons for examination, with the recommendation to operate if there is a possibility of recovery or improvement. One or two such cases have come before the claims department recently, and it is

COURT TO DELIBERATE OVER PIG OWNERSHIP

Possession Of Porkers At $15 Per Head To Be Decided This Term.

To decide who owns two pigs, each worth about $15, the machinery of the circuit court, with its presiding judge, bailiff and 24 jurymen subject to duty, will be called into action during the fall term of court in department No. 1. The case is entitled G. W. Eyre versus E. D. Berry and is an appeal by the plaintiff from the decision of the justice of the peace court, Judge Glenn E. Unruh presiding.

In his complaint before the justice court, filed June 12, Mr. Eyre alleges that the defendant unlawfully took two pigs from his possession and that the defendant unjustly detains them. Mr. Eyre demanded the pigs, or $30 and $10 additional damages.

The pigs wander through the courts according to the following schedule of documents:

June 12—Mr. Eyre files his complaint against Mr. Berry before the justice of the peace court, Judge George E. Unruh.

June 14—Summons returned and filed.

June 21—Defendant answers, denying he has any pigs belonging to Mr. Eyre.

July 2—Case comes up and is set for trial July 8.

July 8—Mr. Eyre testifies in his own behalf and Mr. Berry testifies in their behalf. In the meantime the two pigs are spending the time on the farm of George W. Weeks on the River road. Judge Unruh takes the case under advisement.

July 11—Justice of the peace finds for the defendant and assesses costs against Mr. Eyre, amounting to $13.05.

July 16—Cost bill filed.

August 5—Notice of appeal filed by Mr. Eyre.

August 5—Underwriting of appeal filed.

August 5—Execution stayed pending appeal to the circuit court.

September 3—All records in the case filed with the office of the county clerk.

September 3—All records now officially docketed, ready to be assigned date for trial of case before Judge Kelly and a jury of 12 good and honest men. No date set as yet for the trial.

When the circuit court and all its machinery is grinding, it costs the county about $93 a day. The 24 jurymen subject to call at any time receive their regular compensation.

When 12 jurors are found who are not partial to Carson & Brown, attorneys for Mr. Eyre, nor are partial to B. W. Macy, attorney for the defendant, and who have not read the papers to form an opinion, or who believe they could honestly and truly give a just verdict, they will be permitted to sit on the case and be sworn by Henry H. Klopping, deputy county clerk, and each will swear "I will well and truly try the matter at issue between the plaintiff and the defendant, and a true verdict render according to the law and evidence as given me on the trial, so help me God."

RANCHER IS BURNED OUT

Dallas, Or., Sept. 5.—In one of the fiercest forest fires of the season, which raged above Falls City all day Tuesday near the headwaters of Teal Creek J. W. Smith, a rancher, lost practically all of his possessions together with those of the entire family.

The fire, the origin of which is a mystery, spread with such rapidity in the dry underbrush of the mountains that it was almost impossible for the large crew of firefighters that were rushed to the scene to make any headway in combating it. In some instances burning bark and other inflammable materials were carried at least half a mile distant, and in each case new fires would be set out, which made fire-fighting difficult.

W. V. Fuller, district fire warden, was at the scene and directed the movements of the fighters. Mr. Fuller stated last night that had it not been for the rain of Wednesday morning the fire probably would have burned over several hundred acres before it could have been gotten under control, as the nature of the country around Teal creek makes it difficult to accomplish much against a raging forest fire.

funeral services were held this afternoon from the Terwilliger home under the direction of the First Church of Christ, Scientists. Burial will be in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

The bid of Erixon & Jones of $1685 for the reconstruction of the vestibule on the south entrance of the post office building has been accepted by the post-office department at Washington, D. C. The work must be completed within 75 days. The department approves of the use of the Oregon branch of Portland cement and the brand of white lead proposed by the firm. The work will be done under the direct supervision of the custodian of the building assisted by a technical expert sent here by the post office department. Mr. Erixon has been the successful bidder for several buildings for the government, including the post office at Albany built five years ago. The changes on the south entrance of the post office include a new system of doors and the building of a vestibule in the lobby. The bid of Erixon & Jones was the lowest of three. One of the firms bidding was a contracting firm from Chicago, taking a chance of doing a little work out west.

To add to the festivities of Elks day during the state fair, Chas. R. Archard, exalted ruler, last evening appointed a committee to prepare music and a few side lines for both day and evening. This committee includes W. L. West, chairman; R. White, E. A. Kurtz, George H. Weigel and Fred A. Erixon.

Colonel North of Portland, accompanied by Major Schurr, property officer of the state, were in the city yesterday afternoon in conference at the adjutant general's office.
