

Little woolens are so expensive Keep them new this way

THEY must be washed so often! Yet they must be kept soft and "comfy." Not a scratchy thread! Not the least bit shrunken!

Find out for yourself how the Lux way of washing saves woolens. Lux comes in pure, delicate flakes. They dissolve instantly in hot water and whisk up into a rich lather. There is no rubbing to make little woolens stiff, matted and shrunken. Just sousing in the rich pure lather, gently pressing the suds through the soiled parts.

Lux won't hurt anything pure water alone won't injure. Your grocer, druggist or department store has Lux—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

To wash little woolens like new

Use two tablespoonfuls of Lux to a bowlful of water. Dissolve in boiling or very hot water, whisk into a thick lather and add cold water to make suds lukewarm. Put the woolens in. Then squeeze the suds through the garments. Do not rub. Rinse three times in clear, lukewarm water, dissolving a little Lux in the last rinsing water. Squeeze the water out. Do not twist. Dry in a moderate temperature. Press with a warm iron.

There is nothing for fine laundering like Lux!

LUX

Copyright, 1919 by Lever Bros. Co.

NORTH HOWELL NEWS

(Capital Journal Special Service.) North Howell, Or., Sept. 10.—School will begin here September 29 with Miss Rominger of Hazel Green as principal and Miss Riches of Silverton in charge of the primary grades. Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Coomler left this week for a visit with Mr. Coomler's parents and other relatives in Indiana. Mrs. Leon Sawyer and children are living in the house owned by Mrs. Alice Willis. Miss Clara Ringstad of Washington is visiting friends here. A number of North Howell young folks attended the dance at Livesley's hop yards Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. K. D. Coomler visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Sawyer. Miss Esther Scharf is spending a few weeks with her friend, Miss Edna Stevens.

BOSTON PUT AT MERCY OF THUGS BY POLICE STRIKE

(Continued on page three)

streets, broke into store windows and scattered their contents about the streets.

Law abiding citizens, including women, were terrorized in several districts and these streets were soon deserted by all save the lawless element.

At eight o'clock today, several hundred police officers were called upon to do police duty, following the offer of their services by President Lowell. A few hundred citizens who volunteered for police duty were also assigned to patrol the streets. It was feared that even this force is inadequate to cope with the situation, if the lawlessness of last night is duplicated tonight.

Mayor Peters said he had been assured last night by Governor Coussage and Police Commissioner Curtis that ample measures to protect the city had been taken. He declined to comment on the situation today.

As a result of last night's disorder it was expected that the state guards, of which ten thousand can be mobilized, will be called out immediately.

Rioting at several widely separated points, however, occurred shortly after 10 o'clock today when mobs attacked volunteer policemen who had arrested looters. In many cases the prisoners were released by the crowds.

It is now today 150 men and boys had been arrested. Of this number, 90 were released with nothing.

The loss from looting and property damage will amount to $500,000 it was estimated by city officials.

DALLAS BUTCHER VICTIM OF BLOOD-POISONING ATTACK

Dallas, Sept. 10.—Z. Shire, a butcher in the employ of the Dallas Meat company is confined to a bed in the Dallas hospital with blood poisoning as a result of a deep cut from a knife received while dressing a beef at the slaughter house just west of this city. Shire was alone in the building engaged in dressing a beef when the carcass fell from the hook striking the knife in his hand and forcing it across the forearm, severing an artery and cutting the flesh to the bone. Medical attention was rendered him as soon as possible but late Saturday blood poisoning set in and for a time it was feared that he now would have to be amputated. Yesterday however he was resting easy and hopes are entertained for his complete recovery.

PERSHING HEADS YANK VETERANS IN PARADE

(Continued from page one)

one bearing the Stars and Stripes the other Pershing's four starred pennant.

Then came his staff followed by the famous "composite regiment" representing practically every unit in the A. E. F. which participated in the London and Paris "victory parades." More than one thousand wounded men of the First, borne in automobiles were next in line. They were showered with flowers, cigarettes and candies. There followed rank after rank of infantry, artillery and machine gunners, supply and hospital trains and all other sections of the division. A heavy mist, hovering low, cast a grimness over the moving battalions that the gay decorations and the enthusiasm of the crowds could not dispel.

The doughboys, their backs bent under sixty pound packs, with bayonets fixed and shrapnel helmets pulled forward at a business-like angle, plodded along at the semi-shuffling gait that had been acquired by long months of hiking in the mud and ruck of France. It was not so showy as a parade ground step, but it had a realistic air that gripped the crowds as nothing else could.

Near Forty-second street, several hundred wounded of other divisions, still under treatment in military hospitals, were grouped.

At the end of each hour, the division halted for a ten minute rest. These periods were the occasion for impromptu receptions to the soldiers by the admiring throngs. The parade, it was estimated would require six hours in passing.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

Hogs Drop $1.00 To $1.25 On Chicago Market Today

Chicago, Sept. 10.—A drop of from $1 to $1.25 in the price of hogs at the Chicago stockyards today was charged to a panicky feeling among sellers and to the reported intention of packers to run down prices at the start of the winter packing season, according to the United States bureau of markets here.

Bulgarian Treaty Will Be Formally Presented Friday

Paris, Sept. 10.—The supreme council of the peace conference arranged with the Bulgarian delegates today for formal presentation of the Bulgarian treaty at the French foreign office Friday.

Colonel E. M. House will return to Paris from London Sunday to resume his duties at the peace conference.

Advices to the state department in Washington from Paris yesterday said the treaty had been signed. This was obviously an error.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

By the time Pershing had reached the "Victory Arch" practically all the men in line were wearing flowers flung them by the crowds and they were literally marching on a carpet of blossoms.

When Pershing passed St. Patrick's cathedral he caught sight of Cardinal Mercier, the Belgian primate, who was viewing the parade from the steps. Dis-mounting, Pershing strode through the crowd, shook hands with the cardinal and returned to his place at the head of the parade.

Upon arriving at Washington Arch, the parade's terminus, Pershing again left his mount. Looking up the avenue where the crowds were still acclaiming his troops, the commander said: "I never saw anything like it in all my life and never expect to see anything like it again. It was a most wonderful outburst of enthusiasm and patriotism all the way down the line." A motor car was awaiting Pershing at the foot of the avenue, but returning to his horse, he remained at the side of the arch, reviewing the troops as they passed. Later he entered a car and returned to his hotel, where he resumed his view of the marchers.

When Pershing reached Forty-second street, hundreds of wounded soldiers on benches and wheel chairs there struggled to their feet and saluted their commander in chief. Maimed and crippled as they were they still imbued with the spirit that had conquered the flower of the Prussian army. Many legless among them were lifted from their seats by marines to give the salute. It was a spectacle that brought tears to the eyes of many.

THE GREATER WOOLEN MILLS STORE

Will meet the fall season with all the season's requirements in Men's Wear.

Whatever troubles others may have in securing shipments of Fall and Winter stock, there is no trouble at Bishop's. New goods are coming in big consignments, including the latest and best, to fill up the enlarged building. Among other fine features of the new stock will be an absolutely pure, fleeced wool shirt, known as

"BISHOP'S FABRIC"

A dressy, serviceable garment, representing the very best value to be found in the Oregon market this season. It is made up in khaki shades—plain and military collars—sizes from 14 1-2 to 19. Price $5.00. Should sell for more.

The new store will have a "broad-side" of dress and hard-service shoes. They are being lined up today. A large shipment of the popular

JUST WRIGHT SHOE

Built on honor—the very latest lasts and cuts—velour calf, vici kid—gun metal—but-ton and lace. Don't fail to see the attractive colors—Cherry Red and Cocoa Brown. They appeal to the particular dresser, and they are good all the year round. Prices from $7.50 to $15.00.

THE ACE SHIRT

Is the latest arrival in the line of Fine Dress Shirts—made up in a bewildering variety of stripes and silk-figured weaves. Soft cuffs and bands. They go from $2.00 to $5.00, but you will forget the price in the beauty of the garment.

The Famous Stetson and Mallory Hats $4 to $8

BISHOP'S SALEM WOOLEN MILLS STORE

A reliable, safe skin treatment

You need never hesitate to use Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap in the treatment of severe or simple skin-troubles. There is nothing in them to injure the tenderest surface.

Resinol

is a doctor's prescription which, for over twenty years, has been constantly used by other physicians for eczema and other itching, burning, unhealthily skin affections. They prescribe Resinol, knowing that its remarkable soothing, healing action is due to ingredients so gentle and harmless as to be suited even to a baby's delicate skin.

All drug stores sell Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. For trial size of each, write to Dept. 2-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

SNAPS

Good 5 room bungalow, 4 blacks from P. O. If sold next week $2250.

Good 7 room modern home 5 blocks from business center; good basement; paved street. $2900.

64 acres, 4 1/2 miles south, fair buildings, 6 acres timber, rest in crop. $125 per acre.

3 10-acre tracts 3 miles from Salem, $200 per acre, 1-3 cash.

For sale, investments. See us—We're here to stay.

LAFLAR & LAFLAR 406-407-408 Hubard bldg.

TURNER LOCALS

(Capital Journal Special Service.) Turner, Sept. 10.—G. W. Eyre, promoter of the U. S. bank boys pig club, was a recent Turner visitor, negotiating for a three year lease on a cash basis, of a 540 acre ranch near here on the Turner-Union road.

The Zelmer Brown family are moving to Aumsville, vacating the Methodist parsonage which will be occupied by a resident minister after conference.

Hobart R. Gillfillan of Grants Pass was a Sunday guest at the Turner house.

The Nicely family, Turner residents for many years, are moving to Portland. Their many friends wish them luck in their new home.

Ward Russell, wife and little daughter Laurene, of Waconda were Sunday visitors at the Turner house.

Turner is leading herself this season as a shipping point for berries and beans.

The Jasmin family from Woodburn are moving into the L. H. Turner house on G street.

Mr. Humphrey, saw mill man of West Stayton, was a business visitor here Monday.

The David Eastburn family have moved back from Seio and are again living in the Presbyterian parsonage.

Miss M. C. Cundit is home from a week's visit with friends in West Stayton.

A. E. Cameron of Roseburg was a visitor at the Turner home Wednesday.

Turner enjoyed the sight of the moving airplanes and hope they may soon return to remain at the capital city, their logical base.

Tobacco Habit Dangerous

says Doctor Connor formerly of Johns Hopkins hospital. Thousands of men suffering from fatal diseases would be in perfect health today were it not for the deadly drug nicotine. Stop the habit now before it's too late. It's a simple process to rid yourself of the tobacco habit in any form. Just go to any up to date drug store and get some Nicotol tablets; take them as directed and lo! the pernicious habit quickly vanishes. Druggists refund the money if they fail. Be sure to read large and interesting announcement by Doctor Connor soon to appear in this paper. It tells of the danger of nicotine poisoning and how to avoid it. In the mean time try Nicotol tablets; you will be surprised at the result.—D. J. Fry.

Healthful Bread

Ours is without question the best flavored bread on the market. It has that goodness about it which is characteristic of home-made bread. It is as sweet as a nut and as pure as spring water

FRESH EVERY DAY Try Our Rolls, Cakes and Pastry BAKE-RITE SANITARY BAKERY 457 State Street

Rheumachol FOR RHEUMATISM

Pick Up Thy Bed and Walk

Be well, strong and active once more. Climb the hills with the gusto of perfect bodily vigor. You may be bed-ridden now—but hundreds of fellow-rheumatics have regained full health, strength and activity by taking RHEUMACHOL.

"I have used two bottles of RHEUMACHOL and feel greatly improved. I had Mrs. Amy Young get two bottles for a friend, the most pitiful case I ever saw. Since taking RHEUMACHOL, however, this woman can move her fingers, put her arms above her head, and straighten her knees," writes Mrs. Emma Beemer, Grand Junction, Colorado.

RHEUMACHOL, an internal remedy, taken in small doses three times daily, quickly effects these wonderful improvements, because it removes the cause of Rheumatism. It is made in Idaho Springs, Colorado, where natural hot, healing waters have relieved hundreds of sufferers. RHEUMACHOL contains these healing waters blended with certain medicinal properties discovered by H. E. Machol, master-pharmaceutical chemist, who guarantees every bottle.

You can quickly rid yourself of gout, lumbago, sciatica and all forms of rheumatism by getting RHEUMACHOL from your druggist at $1.00 a bottle.

On Sale in Salem at J. C. Perry Pharmacy, The Red Cross Pharmacy, Crown Drug Co., Central Pharmacy, William Nemeyer.

The RHEUMACHOL LABORATORIES CO IDAHO SPRINGS, COLORADO

Coffee Costs some people more than money. If coffee drinking disturbs health, try POSTUM No raise in price. LAFLAR & LAFLAR 406-407-408 Hubard bldg.

Try Salem First In Buying