

BOARD MAKES READY FOR SCHOOL OPENING

Dr. Chester Downs, a young physician who has recently located in Salem with offices in the Masonic Temple, was elected school physician for the coming year by the board of directors at a meeting held last evening.

The board also passed on the resignations presented by two teachers. That of Mrs. L. H. McMahon, nee Bertha Byrd, was accepted with a letter of appreciation of her past services in the Salem schools.

A stock breeders' association was organized at the Lane county fair with 27 charter members.

Eugene Radiators Visit Fair In Body This Morning Glad in their gray uniforms, the Eugene Radiators, representing the Eugene chamber of commerce, arrived in Salem this morning to attend the state fair on Salem day.

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITS ARE MOST POPULAR

With exhibits from the University of Oregon, the Oregon Agricultural college, state school for deaf, Oregon state hospital, institution for feeble minded, state industrial school, many counties and social organizations, the education building at the fair grounds is proving one of the most attractive on the grounds.

Today those in charge of the information desks have been kept busy answering questions, and many of the novel exhibits have interested thousands.

Tastefully and artistically done by women students, the University of Oregon exhibit has been visited by hundreds of persons. Opposite, officials of the agricultural school offer a showing which is quite elaborate. Colored pictures show students at work and play and bulletins are passed out to those interested.

Worthy of mention is the 'Cla-Coo's' display in one corner of the building. Serving clam chowder, made entirely of Coo's products, and showing everything from dainty needle-work to a miniature logging camp, the booth has attracted a deal of attention. The logging camp with three tiny, electrically operated donkey engines, correctly demonstrates the work carried on in a lumber camp. The outfit, which is perfect in its proportions, was made by 12-year-old Paul Shultz. The Cla-Coo's exhibit is in charge of E. R. Peterson.

Needlework, canned goods, flowers and flowers, and baskets woven by the men, women and children of the other state institutions are worth viewing. Considerable interest was manifested in the exhibit of the Oregon congress of mothers which offered a display of an instructive nature.

Fair Tickets Placed On Sale In Portland Today

With a view to relieving congestion at the gates tomorrow, 2500 admission and grandstand tickets have been sent to Portland to be sold in that city. It was announced today by J. E. McClintock, auditor at the state fair grounds. Tomorrow the steeplechase will be staged in front of the grandstand by members of the Portland Hunt club, and as the day is in honor of Portlanders and the Elks, it is believed that a large crowd will be present.

The Applegrowers' association at Hood River has shipped 27 carloads of Bartlett pears and now d'Anjous are rolling in at the rate of five carloads daily.

ATTENDANCE RECORD SMASHED YESTERDAY

Statistics for the second day of the Oregon state fair show that yesterday's cash receipts were $700 more than on the same day of last year, according to J. E. McClintock, auditor of the grounds.

"Nothing has ever compared with the attendance so far recorded this year," Mr. McClintock declared this afternoon.

Although it was impossible to get exact figures this afternoon, it is known that today's attendance will greatly exceed any one day's attendance in the state fair's history. Another record-breaking crowd is expected on the grounds tomorrow. It is thought that Thursday's steeplechase will be a big drawing card.

SALEM MOVES EN MASSE TO FAIR GROUND TODAY

cial exhibits, and continually winding through the many stock barns, exhibitors and authorities in charge have been exceptionally busy today. In the education building thousands of visitors have already been entertained and hundreds expressed themselves as being favorably impressed.

At 4 p. m. this afternoon a band concert will be held in the livestock coliseum, and at 4:30 a fire drill by Chief Thomas Graham's picked company will be staged. This evening at 7:15 Tommasino's band will offer another concert and vaudeville will be staged in the agricultural pavilion auditorium. Paul Petrie dramatic solo tenor, of Portland, will sing. Miss Elizabeth Levy, of Salem, will render a violin solo and Miss Louise Clark, of this city a whistling solo.
