Officers of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association are well pleased with the work done at the state fair and the attention given to speakers at the association's booth. At all times of the day crowds were around the booth asking for information and receiving same, as well as copies of the Oregon Grower. C. I. Lewis, publicity manager spoke daily from the booth and spent the greater part of the week giving information in general as to why the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association was organized and what it intended to accomplish. Now that the state fair is over and the really busy season passed, the association will give more time to its membership work and will soon begin holding meetings in all parts of the valley.

Miss Ada Miller, teacher of voice. Thursdays, second floor of Derby building. Residence 660 N. High St. Phone 1948.

When the legislature passed the law requiring a medical certificate of a man applying for a marriage license, and also when the law was passed providing that the license can be issued only in the county where the bride lived, trouble started for those who have decided to step up to any county clerk's counter and get the necessary permit. Again this morning a couple stepped jauntily up to the marriage license counter and ran up against two fatal propositions—the first that no medical license had been obtained and the second that the prospective bride wasn't sure whether she lived in Marion county or Portland. An affidavit by a third party must be made as to the bride's residence.

MUNSING WEAR

This is the biggest and best state fair we have ever had; all records for attendance have been broken, and the visitors from other states and the remote parts of our own state marvel at the showing Oregon is making, but particularly at the wonderful opportunities in the Willamette valley.

Let us develop those possibilities, build on them and stand before our nation as the greatest section in America.

This is not "hot air," "airy dreams," but a practical possibility.

If we will but do our part individually we shall then do our part collectively.

We should, say we must "play the game" and "play the game square," and patronize our own industries and our own merchants.

In war times anyone not backing "their own," were termed "slackers," and justly received the condemnation of their neighbors.

In times of peace the term "slacker" is just as applicable to those who buy away from home, and leave a few loyal ones to carry the load of development for the community.

Let each of us ask ourselves if we are really "playing the game square" and then ask our neighbors if they are doing their duty to develop our wonderful city and the greatest county in Oregon.

In this modern fire-proof building—the largest and best equipped knitting mills in the United States, more than 3500 healthy, happy, well paid employees work under the most sanitary conditions, in the production of MUNSING WEAR. When you put on a suit of "MUNSING WEAR" you have the assurance that it is clean and sanitary, fit to wear next to your skin. We carry MUNSING WEAR for
