

CREAMERIES TO SEEK CHANGE IN EXHIBIT METHOD

Salem creameries have started a movement to reform competitive exhibitions of butter at fairs and displays, so that the prizes will be offered upon samples of average production instead of special exhibit prepared cubes.

It is pointed out as a well known fact that the present day competitive exhibitions of butter and the awarding of prizes carries very little, if any, valuable information to the general public that buys butter.

The cube that exhibits rarely represents the daily output of its creamery and the result is that the public gets very little practical information in order to be able to judge whether or not a creamery is entitled to the credit of making a 92 score butter or better in its daily run of business.

There is a general consensus of opinion on the part of creamery men and dairy products officials that such a course should be followed and adhered to, and sporadic efforts have at times been made to adopt the plan.

Accompanying the entry was the following affidavit: I, F. G. Deekbach, president of the Marion Creamery & Produce Co., hereby certify that the cube of butter entered by this company as above set forth, was a part of the regular daily churning.

from 79 individual cream patrons and churned into butter on the morning of September 21st, 1919. Said facts being fully set forth on the churning sheet of September 21st. Total butter churned 502 pounds.

Signed F. G. DECKBACH, President. Subscribed and sworn to this 21st day of September, 1919, before me MRS. E. S. WILSON, Notary Public.

The judges of the contest at the state fair scored this butter at 92 per cent perfect. As was to be expected twelve entries scored somewhat higher in the contest of twenty entries.

State Food and Dairy Commissioner Mickle was deeply interested in the outcome of this venture as also was his deputy, Mr. Siemer. Whether or not future contests will adopt qualifications of this character remains to be seen.
