HOME SERVICE KEPT BUSY BY PLEAS FOR HELP FROM SOLDIERS

The Home Service section of the Red Cross with headquarters in the post-office building was the mecca yesterday for former service men who happened to be broke and needed a little cash assistance.

Mrs. Alice H. Dodd, secretary, said that eleven applications were made Thursday by young men who wanted financial assistance more than work, with one or two exceptions.

Her chief difficulty, Mrs. Dodd says, is to do the right thing by the young men, yet not hand out the money of the organization to every one who wants money rather than work.

Many young men apply to this Red Cross service for money to aid them temporarily, as to get them to some location where they have friends and work. These young men are often given money, even when Mrs. Dodd is in doubt, on the grounds that the Home Service is organized to help and she does not want to make the mistake of refusing a worthy young man.

Yesterday one man in soldiers uniform was much displeased that he could not get the cash he asked for, saying that at other Red Cross stations he was always handed out money. Another soldier appeared asking for money, saying that he expected to go back to Minnesota to attend school, although he had just been discharged at his home in Minnesota a few months ago.

The big problem of the Home Service section of the Red Cross is to aid the worthy soldier who happens to arrive in Salem without a dollar and yet at the same time not pass out the funds of the organization, where she feels a job would be worth more than a few dollars ready cash. The special object of the Home Service is in finding work for soldiers and in this respect, it has been most successful, Mrs. Dodd said.
