Rev. Willard, who came to Salem at the request of the state office of the Armenian Syrian relief association, at Portland, said that much assistance has come from churches, Rev. G. L. Lovell, president of the Salem Ministerial Union, after discussing the plan with Rev. Willard, announced that he would carry the plen to all churches in the city. HELP ARMENIANS

Under plans now being perfected a drive will be conducted in Salem for clothing for the Armenian Syrian relief until October 10. A ship is now loading at New York with relief material for the near east sufferers, and Salem is expected to "go over the top" in this drive and distinguish it self as it has previously. Rev. W. W. Willard, acting pastor of the Congregational church of Porland, who came to Salem Wednesday to organize assistance for the drive, told of the argent need of assistance in the near east before he returned to Porland Thursday morning.

'There are hundreds of thousands of refugees in Syria and Armenia waiting for a chance to get on their feet through the establishment of a stable government of their own,' he declared. "And they are now dependent on aid that must come from the outside. Therefore the Armenian-Syrian relief association was formed in the United States; and until October 10, will bend every offort to enlist assistance for the people."

Rev. Willard, before coming to Salem, visited Pendleton and La Grande. He said that at these cities every sympathy was extended the movement.

While in Salem Rev. Willard conferred with Superiatendent of City Schools Todd Scerefary of the Commercial clah McCroskey, and N. C. Kafoury, of the firm of Kafoury Bros., who pledged assistance to the movement. Kafoury rBos. store on State street will be headquarters for the
