COAST PENNANT GOES TO VERNON BY SUNDAY WINS

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 6.—(United Press.)—Vernon took everything in a night yesterday. It won two ball games from the Angels and tucked away the Coast league pennant.

The championship was clinched in the first game of a doubleheader which Vernon won 3 to 2 and then, not content, gathered in the second game, 6 to 3.

The largest crowd which ever witnessed a minor league ball game saw the Vernon victory. The turnstiles clicked off 20,200, as the day's paid attendance. The best previous record, it was said, was made in Columbus, when Bill Clymer was manager there and 16,000 people witnessed a game with Toledo.

"I only wish Happy Hogan could have lived to see this day," was the statement of Roscoe Arbuckle, the Tiger owner, after the pennant was won.

"We were beaten by the best team that ever played in a minor league," declared Wade Kilgus, manager of the Angels.

Vernon and St. Paul, winners of the American association pennant will open here Wednesday in the "junior world series," to determine the minor league championship.

Girl Steals to Save Eyesight; Lands In Jail

Portland, Or., Oct. 6.—(United Press.)—Pretty 16-year-old Mary Patterson is in jail. So is her sister, Rita, aged 12. For Mary is going blind. She has already lost the sight from one eye, and is rapidly losing the other. She needed money for an operation by a specialist, in an attempt to save the sight of the remaining eye. So Mary stole. And little Rita helped her, according to the story the girls told the police following their arrest.

The girls confessed stealing several ornaments and a watch in a jewelry store, selling the plunder for $4. Mary hid the money in her home—in an old stocking. It was a start, at least.

So the girls started out the next day to continue their campaign of gaining enough money for Mary's operation. But the "start" was also the finish. The jeweler whom they had visited the day before, was looking for them, saw the girls on the street, and had them arrested.

"Oh, I'd do anything," Mary told a reporter, as she brushed away a tear, "if I could only see. I'd go without good clothes and everything. It's awful, mister, to know that some day you are going to be so that you can't see the flowers, or the birds, or Mount Hood, or any of the pretty things."

"If I don't go completely blind, I will be happy. But I guess I'll go blind, for the doctor said it would take an operation to save my sight, and poor mother hasn't enough money to pay for it."

Washington, Oct. 6.—(United Press.)—The supreme court reconvened for its regular October term today, faced by a mass of appeals involving the future of "big business," anti-trust prosecutions and scores of knotty questions growing out of the war.

The prohibition question is also expected to come up at this term for a final decision and the court probably will have the final word as to what is intoxicating liquor and how strictly the enforcement laws shall be upheld.

The School Book Question

We are in business in Salem for the convenience of the public and are making every effort possible to supply the demands of those who want to buy books but do not desire to compete with book stores in Salem in any manner and therefore are not handling any paper, inks, notebooks or such supplies.

We Handle Books Only

Owing to the increase in population in the last six years it has been impossible to get a close estimate of the number of books needed by the Salem and rural schools. Consequently we have in some cases ordered less than the required number and have been temporarily out of books obtainable at Portland. We regret this but can't help it.

The following named books are not available from the publishers: Macos School History; Gordy, American beginnings in Europe; Gordy, Stories of American History; Beacon First Reader and many of the high school texts.

These will be on sale here at the earliest possible time. We solicit your cooperation.
