MISS LUCI LE BARTON

Miss Barton was instructor in the music department of Willamette university last year but resigned at the end of the year to reopen private classes in voice and piano.

Miss Barton studied in Syracuse university under Harold Butler, the head of the vocal department, and under Mahrt and Joseph Metz of the piano department. She also studied voice under Nellie Humphrey and Howard W. Lyman who is at present connected with Syracuse university, and at two different times with Mme. Corn R. Giese. Mme. Giese has made several tours of the world as a grand opera star, having been pupil and friend of such masters as Moderate, Ernani and Henshell of New York city, Mme. Hall of Boston, LaChappelle of The Hague, and Mierzumski of Paris.

Miss Barton was soloist in one of the largest churches of Syracuse for a number of years. She has been a most successful director of choruses and quartets which have been a source of great pleasure to the music loving public. The people of Salem are well acquainted with Miss Barton's rich dramatic contralto voice and are glad to learn that she will be in the city again this year.

The first affair on the week's social calendar is the dance at the Moose hall this evening, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and Daughters of Isabella. Everything is in readiness for one of the most delightful dances of the season, music and decorations being in keeping with the event. A competent floor committee will see to it that all guests enjoy themselves to the utmost. The following prominent women are acting as sponsors: Mrs. Eugene Eckerlin, Mrs. L. K. Ford, Mrs. P. Jaakowski, Mrs. Frank Durbin, Mrs. R. P. Boise and Mrs. Etta Squire Seely.

Mrs. Nadon is one of the most prominent young matrons of Harrisburg and before her marriage was extremely popular in social circles here. She will be the recipient of a number of pretty social compliments during her visit in the city.

The following item appeared in a recent edition of the Portland Oregonian, accompanied by a picture of Miss Levy:

Standing out among the important entertainment features of the recent state fair held in Salem were the evening concerts by Miss Elizabeth Levy, an accomplished violinist of that city. Miss Levy appeared in the auditorium of the agricultural building on Tuesday and Friday evenings, while on Wednesday and Thursday nights she rendered selections in conjunction with the horse show in the coliseum. Her numbers were well selected and delightfully executed and she was the recipient of much applause and commendation.

In compliment of her work, Miss Levy received a letter from Alfred Tommassino, director of the famous New York Italian band, appearing during the fair, in which he commended her highly. He made special mention of Miss Levy carrying out her part of the program without a single rehearsal.

Besides being an accomplished musician, Miss Levy is very popular in local social circles.

November 11 has been definitely set as the date for the big American Legion dance at the armory. As the personnel of the Legion includes a large number of the younger set as well as some prominent business and professional men, the chances are that the event will be one of exceptional enjoyment.

Plans will be made for the formation of a Hawkeye society and everyone interested is urged to attend. An enjoyable social evening will follow the business session.

The Hiking club, composed of a group of instructors in the local school, has resumed its activities. Last week about 24 of the members hiked to the state school for the deaf and enjoyed a picnic in Painter's woods. Thursday they will go to Irakaman, the lovely country home of the B. Monroe Gilberts south of town.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hunter had as their guest over the week end, Miss Clover Miller of Silverton. Miss Miller is superintendent of the grade schools in that city.

BUSHEY TELLS OF PROGRESS ON MARKET

time, make the usual road beds impractical, Judge Bushey said that the county is placing heavier bases for the hard surface. This is done, he explained, to prevent the surfacing from cracking when the road beds sink.

A campaign against hauling heavy loads over the county highways is being outlined with the assistance of the district attorney, the business men were told. Roads considered unable to take heavy loads will be enumerated by the county, and notices to the effect that hauling of loads weighing over five tons over them will be posted. Violations of this, he said, will be dealt with in courts.

Humor was added to the luncheon when one of the men asked Judge Bushey why he always carried a red bandanna handkerchief.

"I consider that a point of strategy," the judge laughed. "I can use the red bandanna for flagging votes on the street."

MAYNARD WILL START ON RETURN FLIGHT TUESDAY

ready obtained permission from the army air service for the flight.

He will use a DeHaviland, such as he used in this flight. Extra gas tanks allowing him to carry over 300 gallons of gasoline have been installed. Owing to the length of the flight, he will be accompanied by Lieutenant Bradshaw, who will act as relief pilot. They have already made a test flight and the plane was found capable of carrying the great extra weight of fuel.

He hopes to make the cross-country trip in from 20 to 22 hours flying time, and because he will not need to stop, figures to cut down the time made in this flight.

Speaking of his return flight, which he has definitely decided to begin tomorrow at 1:15 p. m. Maynard said:

"I see no reason why we shouldn't make even a better time going east than we did coming west, because we will have the wind at our backs and have the advantage of a motor thoroughly broken in. Except for a few minor adjustments the plane is now in perfect condition. If I had the choice between this plane and another one in the same condition as when we left Mincola, I would choose this one, because it has already proved its mechanic, Sergeant M. B. Cline, were busy this morning giving their motor and plane a thorough examination. They are changing the rubber water pipe connection, and the oil in the motor. They are not even going to examine the spark plugs however, showing their confidence in the wonderful performance of the plugs."

Maynard and Cline both professed to be feeling "just fine" as they did when they left Mincola, and are eager to start back.

New York, Oct. 13.—(United Press.)—Forty-three American army aviators were ready to resume their transcontinental flight today after the enforced rest over Sunday.

War department orders holding flyers who had completed the first leg of the reliability race at their terminals until October 30 rescinded late yesterday. The new orders permit any flyer who has completed the first half of the round trip flight between the two coasts to begin his return journey "not less than 48 hours or more than 96 hours" after he reached a terminal control station.

Lieutenant B. W. Maynard, who reached San Francisco at 1:15 p. m. (coast time), Saturday—winning the first leg of the race and accomplishing the first transcontinental flight—may start back this afternoon. The other two who have completed the first leg of the flight—Major Carl Spatz and Lieutenant E. C. Kiel—probably will not be allowed to leave Mincola before tomorrow morning. They arrived at Mincola after sundown Saturday evening and the rules bar any flyer from leaving a control station after dark.

All other flyers were expected to resume flying today, the weather and condition of their planes permitting. Captain L. H. Smith, who arrived in Rochester late Saturday after breaking a propeller near Cleveland, was due at Mincola this morning. Of the west-bound flyers, expected to reach San Francisco today, three spent Sunday at Saldure, Utah. They were Lieutenant L. S. Webster, Captain J. O. Donaldson and Lieutenant Alex Pearson Jr. Some distance ahead of them was Captain H. C. Rrayton, who spent Sunday at Lovelock, Nev., which is not a control station.

Maynard's official flying time between Mincola and San Francisco, a distance of 3701 miles was announced as 24 hours, 59 minutes, 43 1/2 seconds. Spatz's unofficial time between San Francisco and Mincola was given as 26 hours, 13 minutes 44 seconds. Kiel's unofficial time was 26 hours, 14 minutes, 15 seconds.
