HURRAH FOR THE WASH TUB.

THE bath tub seems to be a weighty issue in Salem—whether the new-comers shall bath in porcelain tubs or in the wash tub after the manner of the pioneers before water works and plumbing were invented.

One of the city's distinguished lawyers and celebrated orators has eloquently and convincingly championed the cause of the wash tub and the shack as attractions for home-seekers and aids in upbuilding sturdy character. Spartan simplicity, which circumstances forced on the pioneer, should be the lot, he advocates of those seeking to make their homes in Salem. We should, presumably, restore conditions as they existed in the days of the emigrant ox-team, to upbuild the community.

The wash tub of the early-days, we are informed produced the brain and sinew that have made Oregon. History repeats itself—the wash tub then should make the brain and sinew of the Oregon of the future. Let us by all means eschew such frills and foolish luxuries as the bath tub, which makes for effeminacy and destruction of the race and go back to the reliable wash-tub of our ancestors.

Bathing in the wash-tub was quite a task—and shirked whenever possible. Those few who still are forced to utilize it or go without a bath, are not remarkable for cleanliness, and hence the use of the bath tub exclusively would mean a rapid increase in population of a certain microscopic kind—an argument not to be overlooked by city builders.

It would be a great advertisement for Salem to lead the effort to rejuvenate the race by placing the ban on the bath-tub and similar modern absurdities. Let the nation once understand that there is one city in the land where age and youth are alike safe from the wicked frivolity, frippery and flummery of the porcelain bath, where the coming generation is surrounded by the household hardships and makeshifts of the pioneer and people would flock here from all parts and the future of Salem be assured, for as long as there are shacks and wash tubs, and the supply seems exhaustless, the housing problem is settled—just as Diogenes settled the housing problem of Athens many centuries ago.

Let us create a new order—free from feudal precedents and modern inventions, sworn to eternal warfare on the bath tub and elect our celebrated orator Night Commander of the Nights of the Wash Tub.

FOUNT OF YOUTH FOUND.

A PARISIAN scientist, Dr. Sergh Voronoff, declares that he has located the fount of youth, in fluids secreted by intestinal glands, and that all that is necessary to perpetuate youth is to graft glands from the youthful of species to replace the outworn glands of the aged, where they resume their function of secreting vital fluid.

Inasmuch as apes' blood is the same as that of humans, all that is necessary for rejuvenation is to graft the glands of a young ape into those of the aged man or woman. The operation is declared to have worked successfully in animals and in the case of at least one man, where a simple operation restored youth to a wornout Frenchman of 66.

This announcement is of interest to those who desire to prolong life beyond its allotted span, but operations are likely to be few and far between, for the disillusionments of life outweigh the love of existence with the vast majority and most old people are world weary and glad when the call comes for eternal rest.

As to the effect of mingling the ape and human upon the character and disposition of the patient, nothing is said. Little is to be feared, however, as there is a great deal of the monkey in some people as it is. They get their chatter, curiosity and mischief making from their primate anthropoid ancestors, and the infusion of the ape couldn't possibly change these characteristics. In fact it would be a return to normal.

The new operation, however, makes it possible for everyone to literally make a monkey out of himself or herself—a favorite pastime with those seeking the fountain of youth.

HUNTING A HUSBAND

By Mary Douglas

KNOWING ONE'S MIND

Four o'clock. But I am not hurrying across the Common. English poetry today seems inadequate, futile. And I do not want to see Professor Coe. Tom has not written to tell me of his engagement. But would he say so? I fight against the thought. But it seems an unfair allotment—that Jennie, shallow and selfish, draws to her, marrying by a man whose thoughts and actions are above her low ideals. And I—in spite of my struggles, can only achieve a Professor Coe. I do not like to say his name. The pettiness of last week can not be wiped out. It stamps the man small and mean. What a disillusionment! His face is so clear before me. The slightly hollowed cheeks, the brown skin. The steady eyes. Yes, there may be rather a tight look about his lips. But I saw only the flash of his white teeth. So it is all over! On my side. But, unless I know nothing, he is beginning to like me. Perhaps to care for me. But he shall not. I will stop him. I can never forget Dr. Bixby's letter. "Be, as I know you will be, a woman worthy of a good man's love." Oh, Dr. Bixby. And again. "Why did you not know your own mind?" I know my own mind now. Another man's pet shall not be humbled. At all costs, Professor Coe shall not propose. I must save his feelings. And I must find some simple way out. There is one simple way out. To marry him! Oh, no, Sara Lane, that is not what you set out to do. Not to marry any man willy-nilly. Not to seek fortune nor an easy dependence. I shall not lower my standards. I am seeking a man whom I can respect, ad-

ire. A man whom I can love. A home, yes. But I care not if the house is a tiny flat or a two-roomed cottage. I can make it the home. If need be, I can do my share of work to help support it. But it is the man that counts. But perhaps Professor Coe would change. Stinginess is a small thing. But again I wince, when I think of my shameless departure from the Greeley Inn. Again I hear the clear voice of the boys. "He always had the rop!" No, I shall never lower my standards. The bell is ringing! The sudden, quick peal that means the professor. How can I ward him off? Nervously I walk up and down the confines of my room. (Tomorrow—Hurt Pride.) C. J. SCHLABAUGH BUYS 100 ACRE FARM NEAR HUBBARD C. J. Schlabauigh and family came to Hubbard from Indiana last spring—Enterprise. Hair Soon Too Short To Do Up

A little "Dandrine" stops your hair coming out and doubles its beauty

To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a small bottle of delightful "Dandrine" at any drug or toilet counter for a few cents, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After several applications, the hair usually stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff. Help your hair to grow strong, thick and long and become soft, glossy and twice as beautiful and abundant.

STUDENTS AT INDIAN SCHOOL GREAT AID TO BERRY GROWERS

The students at Chemawa were the salvation of the neighboring berry growers the past two seasons. The girls and boys immediately at close of school in June began working in the loganberries, raspberries, blackberries and blackcaps. The school was divided into two sections and these sections rotated throughout the summer, working every other day in neighbors' fruits earning good wages. The last job for the girls was picking hops. Some made as much as $6 per day. This occurred in Senator McNary's hopyard. A good many dollars are picked up also by the smaller boys working during recreation hours for a nearby vegetable grower.—Chemawa American.

CHEMAWA HOGS BRING BIG PRICE ON PORTLAND MARKET

At the last sale of Chemawa hogs in the market at Portland 22 cents per pound liveweight was secured, the highest price up to that date ever received for hogs in this market. There were 70 head in the lot. We sell two bands of hogs each year in lots ranging from 70 to 100 each time.—Chemawa American.

Children's Ailments
DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Tablets

Rippling Rhymes.

By Walt Mason.
THE HIGH PLACES
I have bought a grand piano and a sumptuous sedan, and a lot of other doodads, on the monthly payment plan. On each thing I paid a dollar, and I'll pay a monthly bone, till I'm laid away and sleeping underneath a sagging stone. It is true I didn't need them, and I haven't coin to burn, but I see my neighbors blowing every kopeck that they earn, and if they can have pianos and fine motors and such stuff, I will go as far as they do, though it makes the sliding tough. Every month I'll pay a dollar on the junk I do not need, till I limp around on crutches and my whiskers go to seed; and when I have crossed the river to the shining golden shore, I will still be owing money to the Jinx installment store. And I fear the recollection will destroy my peace of mind, when I have a harp before me and a pair of wings behind. But my neighbors, they keep blowing every rouble, every red, and I'd be a sort of piker if I let them get ahead; so I'm buying circus wagons, and I'm buying costly gems, and my wife is wearing sables and has diamond diadems, and I bought the whole caboodle on the monthly payment plan, and I'm riding to the poorhouse in a super-eight sedan.

Odds and Ends

Spokane, Wash.—Jesse James joined the tank corps here today. He's 19 and a mechanic.
Summit, N. J.—The strike bee stung students in the high school here. They took a day off when the principal refused a holiday.
New York.—When some people gossiped they ran away. Not so with James Toulas. He pulled off his wooden leg and smashed it over his assailant's head.
Portland, Or.—Mrs. Chester Leonard wants a divorce because she alleges her husband insisted upon dancing with another woman who made faces at Mrs. Leonard over the husband's shoulder.
Los Angeles, Cal.—Kiss yourself good bye. "The individual drinking cup has replaced the public cup," says a health board bulletin. "Kissing and lugging must go the same way."
Chicago.—A family of ten solved the high rent problem. They were living in the replica of one of the caravels in which Columbus crossed the Atlantic, anchored in the Calumet river here.
Sacramento, Cal.—His back was too far back for his reach so when George Quigley tried to wash his back yesterday he dislocated his shoulder. He received treatment at the emergency hospital.

CHEMAWA STUDENTS FROM ALASKA DELAYED BY BOAT

Removal of Alaska pupils are being held at Alaskan ports on account of the lack of accommodations on the steamers. If all of the Alaskan Indians who have made application for admittance are enabled to reach here school will be full to overflowing.—Chemawa American.
