CONTENTED

There's one who is contented—the hard who writes this poem—though men around have vented harsh language fieked with foam; I like the work I'm doing, the errands I'm mousing, the kind of rags I'm chewing, the wreath upon my dome, I like the pay I'm drawing—it keeps me out of debt—though other guys are jawing about the wage they get; I like the way I'm dining; I have no cause for whining although my face is shining and damp with honest sweat, I like my little cottage, it's humble, but it's nice; I like my frugal potage, composed of prunes and rice; I like the lye I'm thumping, I like the book I'm thumbing; I'll have no kick a-coming until I'm placed on ice. I like the autumn weather, before the winter wakes; I like the kind of leather of which they make our stinks; this world is good to stay in, to put up wood and buy in, to work around and play in, and all complaints are fakes. Oh, evils are existing; I've known it all along; I'm weeping and I'm wailing that many things are wrong; but heaving will not cure them, or help me to endure them, and so I just injure them, and sing my dippy song.

Odds and Ends

Milwaukee, Wis.—Revenue officer Paul E. Hemy is flooded with applications to serve as prohibition slentha. The ward went forth that the slentha must sample all suspicious fluids.

WHY AN INCREASE.

OWING to increased cost of production, the Capital Journal, to remain upon a business basis, is forced to raise subscription rates, effective Nov. 1, to 50 cents a month by carrier and to $4 a year by mail—which will just about pay for the paper used and the cost of distribution. Even at the increased rates, the Capital Journal will be sold at the lowest established rates of any newspaper on the coast.

Newspaper publishers are manufacturers, subject to the rules and rigors of economic laws. They work under a disadvantage, as compared to other manufacturers, as they buy their raw materials and labor in closed and non-competitive markets, while selling their product in competitive markets.

Newspapers cannot prosper and maintain rates that spell loss. Circulation rates must, in the last analysis, be sufficient to pay expenses of white paper and distribution. Advertising rates must be sufficient to pay other operating costs.

Proper rates are those that assure a strong vigorous growing concern, returning a profit to the public, labor employed and capital risked. Such rates insure a newspaper creditable to the community it is published in, and profitable alike to subscribers and advertisers.

Many improvements are being made to make the Capital Journal a better newspaper and prepare for expansion and growth. A new $4,000 four-magazine linotype, the latest word in typesetting machinery, has been ordered, new series of advertising type are enroute from factory, old equipment is being replaced with new and as soon as possible a modern perfecting stereotype press with a capacity of 20,000 papers an hour, will be added to properly care for increased circulation. Carrier service is being reorganized to insure earlier delivery, news service being extended and every effort put forth to make a paper worth while—and to this end the continued cooperation of the community is asked.

HUNTING A HUSBAND

By Mary Douglas

THE VAIN SEARCH

All day I have been searching for work. Again I put on my plain blue suit. I took out a severe white waist that had been lying in my bottom bureau drawer all this time. Waiting, perhaps. My shoes were nicely polished. My gloves were fresh. I put on my little, plain, street hat. And I looked at myself disgustedly. Yes, I am neat enough. I am the kind of a girl a man wants for a secretary. That is all. First I went back to my old office. Miss Moxie met me pleasantly. "Have you had a nice rest, Miss Lane? How well you are looking; I am sorry that your old position is filled. Otherwise we should be glad to see you here, again."

merry. And—how is she different from me? We are both the same. Though she would never confess her aim to herself. I had not—but enough of that. I am a working girl, now. My standard has changed. Experience, competence, hard work, all count here. I shall succeed. Perhaps the thick, white cup of coffee had braced me up. For, I returned to my search with renewed vigor. All afternoon I tramped. But useless. I can have position; but at half of my former salary. I returned home, tired and heart-heavy. But there was mother with her cheery smile. "I'm sure you'll find something tomorrow," she said. "You can't expect to find a good position, your first day."

Elk Still Protected In Oregon Is Brown's Opinion

Elk are still protected in Oregon, as also are mountain sheep, mountain goat, etc., according to an opinion prepared by Attorney General Brown for the guidance of John S. Hodgkin of La Grande, district attorney for Union county. The amendment of the game law by the last legislature did not effect the closed season on these animals, according to Brown, who contends that it was not the intention of the legislature to remove the protection which the old law had thrown about elk and other wild life of the Oregon forests.

Rosedale Items.

Rosedale, Or., Oct. 20.—William Gritton and family have purchased and moved onto the property recently vacated by W. S. Pemberton. The Foster family are moving into the Liberty district. Mrs. B. J. Stroud is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Bear. Dr. Cammack and family from Africa are visiting at the home of her brother, R. M. Cammack. They expect to spend the winter in this vicinity. Dr. Cammack returned to Wenatchee, Wn., Thursday to be gone a few weeks. Mr. Muno and family are moving away. Miss Anderson, our primary teacher, had a sister visiting her the first of the week. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Way are away on a trip to the mountains. Mr. and Mrs. George and two daughters of Portland spent the week-end at C. A. Hadley's. Mrs. Unruh presented the needs of the Baby Home of Portland at the church last Sunday morning. A good subscription was taken for the home. Several from here attended the Sunday school institute at Liberty Sunday week ago.

DOUBLE KILLING STAYS LAW

San Francisco, Oct. 20.—On the morning that he was to appear before Judge Fitzpatrick to answer charges involving a 10-year-old girl, John W. Bogge, 55, a gardener, killed his wife and then himself. Policeman Orr, forcing his way into the house found the body of Mrs. Bogge cold, while the body of her husband was still warm. The arm of Daniel Fisher, a Brownsville contractor, was mangled and crushed by being caught in a bean thrashing machine.

America Has Two Entries To Race With Sir Thomas

New York, Oct. 18.—America has two candidates to compete against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV in the international yacht race set for June 24 next in the challenge from the Royal Yacht club of England. Trial races will be conducted early in the summer by a committee of the New York Yacht club to decide between the Yantle, owned by Alexander S. Cochran, and the Resolute, owned by a syndicate of New York sportsmen. Both yachts were built as entries in the 1914 race which were prevented by the war. The Shamrock IV, which will fly the British colors in the race, has been in American waters since that time.

Chronic Ailments Stopped By Internal Baths

Mr. Joseph Rosenbaum, 5017 Drexel road, Chicago, Ill., writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows: "For many years I was a sufferer from rheumatism, neuralgia and constipation, and after trying many remedies I purchased your 'J. B. L. Casende.' Have been using it ten or twelve years and find it most beneficial. All the above ailments have disappeared and I now enjoy excellent health." You can help nature in nature's most effectual way by internal bathing with the "J. B. L. Casende," and in an easy, nonhabit forming manner keep the intestine as sweet and clean as nature demands it to be for perfect health. Over half a million keen, bright, healthy Americans testify to its results. It is the invention of Chas. A. Tyrrell, M. D., of New York, a specialist on internal bathing for 25 years, and is now being shown and explained by Daniel J. Fry. They will be glad to give you free, on request, a booklet by Dr. Tyrrell, "Why Man of Today is Only 50 per cent Efficient," which is most interesting and will tell you facts about yourself that you have never before realized.
