Who Always Does Better By You

Elton Ray, a resident of South Salem has returned from the prairie sections near Boise, Idaho, where he has had the management of a large dryer for the past five weeks. Mr. Ray reports business in that section of the country extremely good and says that common labor is much better paid than in this part of the northwest.

Mrs. L. B. Sheldon, art director in the public schools of Salem and head of the art department in the Art League of the city, has returned from Portland where she visited the exhibit in the public library there. She is very enthusiastic about the display and plans on bringing it to Salem if it is at all possible. Mrs. Sheldon, who is a critic of accepted ability, says that there are a number of works in the exhibit that are really valuable, expressing, as they do, the new note in art. Many are by rising young artists of New York city. If the plans of the league mature, amendments will have been disposed of and the reservation fight will be shifted to the senate floor. There, Hitchcock plans, with the support of friendly republicans, to vote down the committee reservations, offer a substitute resolution and from that work to a compromise until the necessary two-thirds votes are obtained.
